They went at the ball in a manner that could not help winning. Heydon, in left field, gathered in some hard ones from the bats of the visitors. His error was made on the easiest chance. Hogriever also made some pretty catches, taking one off the rightfield fence that looked good for three bases. The infield work was superb and exhilarating. Magoon and Hickey did some remarkable work, as did also Madison, notwithstanding he made an error.

BARNES'S PITCHING. Barnes and Baker were the opposing pitchers, and the Hoosier man had the best of it. The score shows that the hits were about evenly divided, but the safe drives of the Indians came at times when they drove in runs, while the Bisons hit the ball at most inopportune times, owing to Earnes absolutely refusing to permit them to solve his delivery at critical stages. He got himself in the hole in the second inning, but he was equal to the emergency. He filled the bases, sending the third man down on four balls, which he delivered wild intentionally, and then retired the side without a run scoring. Hickey led in the stick work for Indianapolis, but Heydon's only hit was a beautiful drive to left center, which rolled to the fence and permitted him to trot around the circuit, sending two men across the plate ahead of him. All of the Hoosiers hit safely with the exception of one man. Atherton did the best work with the willow for Buffalo, while Gettman and Baker also found Barnes for long hits.

The Bisons were sent to the field in quick order after they faced Barnes for the first time. The Indians then came up, and, as is customary, Hogriever coaxed Baker to issue him a pass to first, and Baker granted it. Immediately afterward Hogriever was guilty of petit larceny in pilfering second base. Heydon struck out, and on Magoon's out Hogriever went to third, where he had but a short distance to travel to home when Seybold dumped a little hit down the third-base line. The ball rolled near the It rolled to the fence. line in safe territory, and Andrews lay flat on the ground and tried to blow it into foul territory, but he couldn't put enough force to his blower and the ball rolled gently toward third base, allowing Seybold to perch on first.

SOME CLEVER WORK. In the second inning Barnes did a clever piece of work after he had put himself in the hole. Atherton led off with a single, and when Spear attempted to sacrifice Kelly made a bad throw to Barnes, who coverton, however, was suddenly seized with the notion that he could make third on the error, but Barnes picked up the ball and threw him out. Carey then drove one past passed ball advanced both men. Hallman lew out, and Barnes got himself in the hole pitching to Andrews. He then pur- | be present. osely sent him to first on four wild ones. Kelly made the circuit, and Powers landed on third. Hickey went out, but Barnes reached his base on balls. Hogriever advanced Barnes with a sacrifice, and then Heydon connected with one of Baker's alleged puzzling curves and sent it sailing to deep left center for a home run. Buffalo scored two in the fourth, Carey flew out, and Hallman walked! He was forced at second by Andrews. Madison fumbled Baker's grounder, and then Gettman scored the two men with a three-base hit. Indianapolis made three in the last half of the inning. Hickey singled and stole second. Barnes fouled out, and then Hogriever singled, scoring Hickey. A moment later Hogriever stole second, and then Heydon was given a pass. A double steal resulted, both men scoring when Magoon hit safely. The last one made by Indianapolis came Powers and hits by Hickey and Barnes try is at war, but his verses are received scored the run. Baseball Notes.

It was very encouraging to see the manner in which the Hoosiers livened up their laying yesterday. Heydon's home-run hit was placed in Pittsburg 2 0 1 1 1 0 0 3 0just the right territory for such a drive.

Stolen bases came frequently for the Hoosiers yesterday. Spear had hard work in locating second base. Hogriever's work was very fast. He sulted in a putout on the ball being returned to second.

Manager Watkins will give Gibson his first trial in the box to-day. He is now in first-class condition, and great interest centers in his first appearance in the American League. The Indianapolis team plays its last game

He feels compelled to write verses in the fifth inning, when a base on balls to of a patriotic character now that his couneither in silence or with derision. No man could possibly write good verse upon compulsion, with the knowledge that it will be received with universal disapprobation. The other day the poet laureate published some verses in the Times upon the siege of Mafeking. Naturally, he felt that, being the poet laureate, he could not pass by in silence the relief of Mafeking. Also he knew from experience that whatever he might write would be received with more or less disfavor. In such circumstances Lord Tennyson himself could not have written a good poem, and it is no wonder that the poet laureate's Mafeking verses were intolerably bad. The unhappy man must curse the day in which he was selected as the successor of Tennyson. It was not his fault that the selection was made, and it is unfair to treat him as if it was.

Umpire, Hurst. LONDON "SOCIETY."

A Very Select Circle Compared to the Number of Rich People. London Letter.

People are continually grumbling about the fact that London no longer has that elers' Protective Association teams will en- close and iron-bound clique that was once "Oh, anybody can get called "Society." into London society if they only have money enough." This is the usual opinion and expression of most people, who perhaps eak more from observation than from actual experience. As a matter of fact, however, people who know all about society other opportunity to score, and had to be in the narrowest sense of the word are very anxious to disprove this mistaken opinion on the part of outsiders. To quote the words of a well-known writer who studies "society" with almost scientific attention, and in its highest form: "If we give this word 'society' the most comprehensive sense possible, its numbers (in London) cannot be more than 6,000, and even this estimate is really excessive to a grotesque degree. If any one in London in a position to command society was to give a garden party which comprised 3,000 guests, though certain distinguished members of society might be absent from it, it would certainly contain a considerable contingent of persons who, except in their own estimation, were hardly in society at all. "We may therefore say that six thousand people represent the utmost limit to which London society can grow, even though London as a whole should double its inhabitants, or even treble them. Now, compared with four hundred people, six thousand is a large body, but it is a very small body when compared with the inhab itants of the metropolis. It does not make up so much as one eight-hundredth of them. The Court Guide contains the names of about thirty thousand families, and we may estimate that on the average each family contains three members old enough to take part in social life. The whole body thus yields a total of 90,000 persons. "Out of 90,000, then, of the wealthier inhabitants of London it is not too much habitants of London it is not too much tive in the state Legislature. The orator to say that hardly one in fifteen can have then resumed his seat amid "wild apthe smallest possible claim to even the most qualified membership of the body that is called society, nor do the inevitable conditions and limitations of human intercourse make it possible that this body shall ever grow numerically larger." It is therefore to be seen that the writer on this subject, who is evidently absolutely firm in his facts, has little belief in the pessimistic cries that are forever being raised concerning the rule of the money god over Mayfair and Belgravia.

IMAGINARY ILLS.

People Who Think They Are Alling When They Are Not. Youth's Companion.

It is probably within bounds to say that a large proportion, if not fully one-half, of the troubles which afflict mankind are wholly imaginary, or at least greatly exaggerated. A considerable part of every physician's practice consists in the treatent of minor ailments, and of diseases which exist only in his patients' imagina-If this were all, and the only result of sician's income, there would not be so much to be said against it. But unfortunately, imaginary diseases cause a great deal of suffering—as much as, if not more than, the real troubles of which they are the counterfeits.

in his head, and reading medical books and | tors, and it is hardly to be reckoned among Such a man is perhaps more to be pitied han the victim of fatal disease; for while he may live longer, his life is so barren of happiness as to be scarcely worth the hav-There is almost no disease which one who makes a constant study of every little unusual sensation cannot imagine himself to have, but heart disease is, perhaps, the one oftenest simulated. It is so easy to count the pulse and to imagine queer sensations in the chest, and the rythm of the beartbeats changes under such slight provocation, especially if there is a little indigestion, that nothing is simpler than to imagine one's self the subject of some serious disease of this organ.

The habit is thus formed of watching one's symptons; and, once formed, it is most difficult to overcome The best protection against the acquiring of such a habit is education in childhood Parents should never appear solicitous, nor take notice of every little ache or pain with which a child runs to its mother. A sharp stitch in the side does not always mean pneumonia, nor a stomach ache appendicitis, and children should be taught to disregard little discomforts. If a child is given a very light supper and put to bed when it complains it will soon learn not to exaggerate small ills.

Real sickness usually makes its presence known by unmistakable signs, and there is slight danger that a manly disregard of minor ailments and a refusal to be fright-ened by them will lead to the neglect of any really serious trouble.

"NEVER ET A BISCUIT."

Recommendation for a Would-Be Missouri Legislator. Kansas City Journal.

"The man I want to nominate is five feet and ten inches tall, thirty years old, and never et a biscuit," yelled a delegate in the recent convention of the fusionists of Nodaway county, Missouri, while pressing upon his hearers the claims of his favorite candidate for the nomination for representaplause," and on the first ballot taken his able friend who "never et a biscuit" was

By what process of reasoning any one sparkling rhetorical gem to the world could explain it. It appears strange, too, that any intelligent body of American citi-zens could conclude that merely because a without having become known outside of inches, and had never tested his digestive organs on anything but "hog and hominy." he was exactly the person whom they wanted to help make the laws under which they were to live. It would appear much stranger, however, if the people of many of the States of the Union, and among them Missouri, had not for years been filling their legislative halls with men whose qualifications were no better or more numerous than those of the gentleman depicted by our amusing oratorical friend in too much introspection and notice of supnorthwest Missouri. It is doubtful if there was a man in the Fortieth General Assemposed symptoms were to increase the phybly who had never set his alimentary canal to investigate the qualities of a biscuit. But the acts of that General Assembly proved not only that a majority of its members had never seriously considered the needs of the commonwealth, but in addition that There are few more wretched objects than the confirmed hypochondriac, whose days and nights are spent in counting his pulse, looking at his tongue, noticing every flutter in his chest or little shooting pain

INDIANIANS, TOO.

(CONCLUDED FROM FIRST PAGE.) one-third of the delegation is for Long and wo-thirds for Dolliver. We do not consider Woodruff as in the race and will not vote for him at all. If Roosevelt will accept the nomination we are for him as a matter of course. In fact, in my opinion it will be ridiculous for any delegation to vote for anybody save Roosevelt if his names comes before the convention. I understand that it will do so, and in that case he will receive the full vote of our State. Otherwise the greater part of our strength will go to Dolliver.

ALABAMA-The delegation of Alabama is greatly divided on the vice presidential question and on practically everything that comes before them for discussion. The Vaughan and Bingham factions have so far agreed upon nothing, and there is no chance that they will do so before the end of the convention. Some of the delegates are for Long, a few of them are for Dolli-ver and the balance, which comprises about two-thirds of the delegation, say that they have been so busy with their own troubles that they have not even considered the question of a Vice President.

WEST VIRGINIA-Governor Curtin, o West Virginia, said that his delegation i solid for Dolliver if the name of Roosevelt does not come before the convention with the sanction of Roosevelt himself. "We think that Governor Roosevelt has the right to decline a nomination if he so desires, said Governor Curtin, "and if he flath says that he does not intend to accept the nomination we will stand by Dolliver. It my opinion there will be nobody in the race except Dolliver and Long, and we like the former much the better of the two. However, if Roosevelt runs we will declare for him without any question."

KENTUCKY-Governor Bradley, of Kentucky, has given up entirely his vice presidential aspirations and the vote of the State will be cast for Roosevelt if his name comes before the convention. sense of the word," said Governor Bradley, "and it was only for the reason that my friends thought the South should be represented that my name was mentioned at all. Our delegation is now for Roose-velt and, he falling to accept the nomination, we will probably go the larger part to Long, though the matter has been cussed so little in our delegation that it is somewhat difficult for me to say just how it will be divided in case it should not go solidly for Long. There is but one thing certain, and that is that W. O. Bradley is definitely out a race in which he was very indefinitely entered."

NORTH DAKOTA-Senator Hansbrough, of North Dakota, said to-night his delegation was in favor of Roosevelt and hope he would accept the nomination. In the event that he did not they were for Dolliver, as they considered him the most available candidate for the position. In either event the vote would be solid.

MONTANA-Delegate Tyler Worden, of Montana, said to-night that his State was for a Western man, Tripp preferred, if Roosevelt did not run. When told that Tripp would also decline in all probability, they said they would go lot be it. If New York would agree on some other man than Woodruff they would support they said they would go for Dolliver. him as a matter of expediency, but they would not accept the candidacy of Mr.

KANSAS-" We are solid for Roosevelt," said Chairman Burton, of the Kansas delegation. "He will be nominated, he will acdent of this country. We told him yesterday we thought he should make the race and naturally after that we could do nothing else than vote for him." Although Chairman Burton was so confident that the delegation would vote for Roosevelt, several members of it openly announced that they preferred Dolliver, but they would give up their preference if Roose velt would run. The indorsement of Wood ruff cut no figure with this delegation and they said they would not accept him under any circumstances. MAINE-The Maine delegation is still solidly for Long for the vice presidency, not effect that Roosevelt will sweep the con vention when his name is placed before that body. The delegates say they have promised Massachusetts that the secretary of the navy shall get their votes, and they will keep the promise. Some of the men are of the belief that if Roosevelt's name is placed in nomination then Maine will setts's favorite son, as it "will be all over before Maine is reached in the roll of GEORGIA-M. B. Morton, one of the delegates from Georgia, said to-night that the action of his delegation in the vice presidential question would be largely influenced by the action on the Quay resolution of the States having candidates. "It would be unjust to the Southern States," said Mr. Morton, "to punish them for conditions over which they have no control.

NORTH CAROLINA-The North Carolina delegation came instructed for Senator Pritchard and Delegate James E. Boyd said to-night that no other candidate had been considered. FLORIDA-Delegate J. F. Horr said tonight Florida had no choice for Vice President. "We will vote with the administration," he said.

MARYLAND-When asked how the Maryland delegation stood on the vice presidential question, Senator McComas was brief and to the point. He said: "The ticket will be McKinley and Roosevelt. Maryland will vote for Roosevelt.

INDIAN TERRITORY-Governor Roosevelt is Indian Territory's first choice. Colthe delegation had promised the Governor to refrain from voting for him, but if he releases them from that promise they will be undivided for him. Dolliver is also popular with the delegation and Colonei onel C. M. Campbell said to-night that

Campbell says it is more than likely that they will vote for him on the first ballot. VIRGINIA-Virginia's first choice for Vice President is Senator Scott, of West Virginia; second choice, Dolliver; but the delegation realizes that neither of these favorites is now in the race. It is under-stood that the delegation will swing into ine for Roosevelt if his expected strength

MASSACHUSETTS-The Massachusetts delegation put in a very busy day and night, in pushing along the boom of Secretary Long. During the day subcommittees called on the California, New Jersey, West Virginia and Michigan delegations. None of these States made any promises as to what they would do, but promised the Bay State men to give the matter earnest considerapart of the delegation called at the Pennsylvania headquarters, but the Pennsyl vanians could not promise the visiting de gation anything, because the Pennsylvanians had not crystallized on any candidate At 6 o'clock the Massachusetts delegation held a secret caucus. After the meeting it was given out that the situation was satisfactory to Massachusetts. The California men to-night returned the Massachusetts men's visit. The latter think that part the delegation from the Pacific coast will support Long. A subcommittee of the Georgia delegation, headed by Capt. C. C. Winbish, visited the Bay State headquarters to-night, and urged the New England mer to support the Southern States in their fight against Mr. Quay's representation resolution, which he put before the convention to-day. The Massachusetts delegation informed the Georgians that they would give the question consideration. XXX

NEW JERSEY-The action of New Jersey's delegation in declaring for Long as vice presidential candidate stands, but a er of delegates did not hesitate to say that Roosevelt's nomination was inevitable, and that this would be acceptable to the State.

MINNESOTA-The choice of Minnesota for Vice President is Senator Washburn, whose name will be presented by Ray W. Jones, of Minneapolis, if there be an opportunity. Several members of the dele tion are of the opinion that Roosevelt will be the choice of the convention.

SOUTH DAKOTA-South Dakota's delegation is divided between Roosevelt, Dolliver and Tripp for vice presidential nomination and to-night it is unsettled as to how its vote will be cast.

TENNESSEE-The Tennessee delegates held a protracted session this evening, but beyond voting against the Quay amendments to the rules, nothing was done. The chairman of the delegation, Judge Gibson, said that, all things being equal, the South would prefer a Western man for Vice President. However, he added, Tennessee would cordially support any candidate acceptable to the administration.

CALIFORNIA-The delegates will meet in the morning and discuss the vice presidential nomination. Roosevelt has several adherents in this delegation.

HAWAII-After the committee on credentials had voted representation to the Territory of Hawaii the delegation attending the convention from that far off Pacific island met and fully organized. Harold M. A. N. Kepoikai was elected a mem-

WYOMING-The delegation from Wyoming came prepared to boom Col. J. L. Torof Roosevelt became manifest. Judge Willis Vandevanter said to-night that Rooseveit, Long and Dolliver would be equally satisfactory to Wyoming and that the delegation would vote solidly for any one of the three, according to the wish of the convention.

IDAHO-Idaho will vote for Tripp for candidate for Vice President if the opporequally between Roosevelt and Dolliver. XXX

WISCONSIN-The vice presidential situation in the Wisconsin delegation is this: it thinks will help the national ticket most. man is Roosevelt. They do not believe it cause of, first, he also belongs to a Republican State and, secondly, do not think the country wants both houses of Congress presided over by men from the same State. The delegation will hold a caucus to-morrow and it is the belief of most of the delegates that Roosevelt will be the choice. x x x

MISSOURI-Missouri held a caucus tonight which lasted almost three hours. During that time two questions, the vice presidential and the Quay representation resolution were discussed, but no action was taken on either side. From the drift of the discussion the delegates appear to so decide at a caucus which is to be held to-morrow morning. As to the Quay resolution the delegates are inclined to be
